What Is Alprazolam 0.25mg?

Alprazolam belongs to the benzodiazepine class and is widely used to treat generalized anxiety disorder (GAD), panic disorder, and for the short-term relief of anxiety symptoms. It works by enhancing the effects of GABA, a neurotransmitter that calms brain activity, producing anti-anxiety, sedative, and muscle-relaxant effects.

The 0.25mg strength is considered a low starting dose. It is often prescribed for:

- Patients who have never taken psychotropic medications before.
- Elderly or debilitated patients requiring a lower initial dose.
- Patients with hepatic impairment.
- Individuals who are sensitive to higher doses or need gradual titration.

Alprazolam is a federally controlled substance (Schedule IV) due to its potential for abuse and dependence. It is illegal to possess or distribute without a valid prescription.

Available Strengths

Alprazolam is available in several strengths, including 0.25 mg, 0.5 mg, 1 mg, and 2 mg tablets. The 0.25 mg dose is the lowest and is typically used for starting therapy in sensitive patients.

Recommended Dosage – Alprazolam 0.25mg

Use the lowest effective dose for the shortest possible duration.

Generalized Anxiety Disorder (GAD)

Population	Recommended Starting Dose
Adults	0.25 mg to 0.5 mg, taken 3 times daily
Elderly or Debilitated Patients	0.25 mg, taken 2 to 3 times daily
Patients with Hepatic Impairment	0.25 mg, taken 2 to 3 times daily
Maximum Daily Dose	4 mg daily (in divided doses)

Panic Disorder

Population	Recommended Starting Dose
Adults	0.5 mg, taken 3 times daily
Maximum Daily Dose	Up to 10 mg daily in rare cases, under close supervision

Administration Guidelines

- Dose Adjustments – May be increased every 3 to 4 days in increments of no more than 1 mg per day.
 - Treatment Duration – Should be as short as possible; safety and efficacy beyond 4 months (for anxiety) and 10 weeks (for panic disorder) have not been established.
 - Discontinuation – Reduce dosage by no more than 0.5 mg every 3 days to minimize withdrawal reactions.
 - Elderly Patients – Start with lower doses and titrate cautiously.
 - Hepatic Impairment – Starting dose is 0.25 mg, given 2 or 3 times daily.
